GRAIN

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Pronounced bullish sentiment and active general buying carried the corn market sharply upward. Resumption of work by longshoremen at New York counted as material factor in lifting and so too did strength in hog prices. Besides, uneasiness over threatened delays in the movement of corn continued as a handicap to bears. Opening prices, which ranged from $1.32 1/2 to $1.34 1/2, were followed by a steady advance. After opening $1.34 1/2 to $1.35 1/2, the market scored moderate general gains.

Provisions responded to the upward tendency of hogs and grain. On the bulge, however, there was rather selling of hams, and the market for stockyards closed.

Wall Street Review. New York, Nov. 3.—Trading slackened perceptibly at mid-day, probably in anticipation of another money flurry. The market's distinctive equipments were brought forward, however, American Car, American and Baldwin Locomotives and Railway Steel Springs making an extreme gain of 2 to 7 points. Rails and copers also responded to moderate buying.

REV. TURNER SPEAKS
AT C. M. E. CHURCH

Emphasizing the thought that service should be the guiding principle in every life, Rev. E. B. Turner preached a forceful sermon yesterday morning before a large audience gathered in the C. M. E. church. He recently been appointed district superintendent of this district. He has purchased a house in the First ward and expects to move his family here from Beloit about December 1. This was his first address in Janesville since his appointment.

He outlined two philosophies of life which seemed to govern the individual, that of "getting" and that of "giving."

The home he considered the finest exposition of service in that the father was devoting every effort to his family and the mother lived a life devoted to her children. Other examples cited were those of individuals giving time and energy to their churches, their lodges, and to governmental affairs.

"The foundation of industry is in its service to mankind," he said, "and even the railroads have to fulfill some great service to carry out their mission."

He felt that regeneration and not reorganization was what the world needed, and that it was not too much to expect, that in future ages, people would live in a state of service. Special music was furnished by a reorganized choir of 16 voices under the direction of the new choir leader, Miss Florence Snyder.

There was a number of new members received into the church at the close of the morning service.

ST. PETER'S CHURCH

A special program in honor of the anniversary of the Reformation was held yesterday at St. Peter's Lutheran church.

A musical selection was contributed by the choir of about 20 young people.

OPENS NEW ROOMS

The Y. W. C. A. of Rockford has opened a downtown center which has an attractive club room, rest room, kitchenette and lavatory, etc., as well as office space. Shoppers in town for the day may find this a convenient place to rest, to eat lunches which they bring (supplemented by tea or coffee which they may purchase at the rooms). Those who are expecting to remain in the city will be interested in the employment and room registry departments. The secretary who cares for both these branches of work has her office at the downtown center. Only rooms which have been personally investigated by a representative of the association are recommended.

It will be interesting also to learn that the Y. W. C. A. has a rooming place for young employed women, and of the various activities of the numerous clubs, and the department of physical training and recreation.

This new center is located on the second floor, 220 South Main street, with a direct entrance from the street.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1919.

The Gazette Stands Ready to Support all Endeavor to Make Janesville and Vicinity a Bigger and Better Community.

TRAFFIC REGULATION.

The city council is going to be called upon to enact an ordinance which will cover automobile parking, rules of the streets, the time cars can be allowed to remain in one place, and other angles of traffic regulation. It is a big job to properly cover all these various needs on such short notice. It has been suggested that the ordinance now covering some of the regulation of automobiles be repealed and that one comprehensive ordinance covering the needs of Janesville as the city will be in the next ten years be enacted.

It would appear that the council should make a study of conditions in other cities before attempting to enact legislation at this time. Within a few weeks at the most the number of automobiles will be fewer on the streets and the need for immediate action will be less. By next spring, however, something definite should be determined upon so that we may be freed to a great extent from the dangers which confronted us this year and which will be greater as more people move into the city.

Not only will parking be regulated, but the unloading of goods in front of stores should be considered. It perhaps will be necessary to incorporate in the proposed ordinance a provision which will prevent unloading of trucks on main streets where there is access to the rear of stores.

The lighting of streets which will be used for parking when cars are moved from streets with car lines on also must be considered. But at this time such a program would work an undue hardship upon the taxpayers. With the program confronting us, which includes raising funds for schools, water, sewers, street paving and lights we are going to be forced to bond the city to the limit. It is estimated by Mayor Welsh that at least $550,000 will have to be raised through bond issues to carry out the work which is absolutely necessary next year.

The council will meet tonight and the city attorney has been requested to draw up an ordinance covering parking of automobiles. If the council members will lay the matter over until they have an opportunity to make a more complete study of the matter, it will prevent a great deal of confusion in the future.

THE FARMER'S SIDE.

Discussion of the farmer's position in our present-day economic life is ably presented in "Successful Farming," an agricultural newspaper. It says:

"The farmers keep their heads when all others fly off the track. We ask city workers to ponder a moment what might happen if the farmers should do what the workers are doing—demanding shorter hours and higher pay. The farmers are their own bosses so they would not have to quarrel with anybody. They could hold out on strike until they got good and ready, for they can feed themselves."

"You working city fellows, suppose for a moment that the farmers adopted the eight hour day. It would cut down production at least half. Suppose they also set a price on their labor and their products based on an eight hour basic scale. Where would you get your food? Only the rich could buy it at all, for the price would be prohibitive to men on strike. If the cost of living is too high now, how will lessened production affect it? How will increased cost of production bring prices down? You live now because the farmers have gone on producing, working nearer sixteen hours a day than eight hours. You can buy food because the farmers have not gone on strike, have not ceased to produce, have not cornered the market and said 'we demand so much for our products or we won't work.'"

"If you city workers expect the farmers to go on feeding you at the old price you have got to get back to work at the old wage and make it possible for the farmer to buy cheaper so he can produce cheaper. This is not a one-sided game. It takes two to play it and if you city fellows quit, don't get sore if you go hungry soon. Either the farmers must do as you are doing, shorten the hours and demand higher pay, or else you must lengthen the hours and produce more without more pay."

"The farmers have been patient with you. When they lose their patience, look out. You have already taken their help. If they quit, too, who is going to feed you? What city workers have in common with farmers is not so much political as economic. What are you going to do about it?"

FIGHTING "REVENOOSERS".

The setting of a bear trap by Alabama moonshiners to catch internal revenue officers was noted in the news a few days ago. This is somewhat in contrast with the method considered the most orthodox for dealing with "revenoosers"—potting them from ambush with a shotgun.

For many years hunting moonshiners in the mountains of the south has been a hazardous outdoor sport and many an officer failed to return from his quest, even in the days when the manufacture of liquor was legally authorized all over the southland. Now that there is no longer such legal manufacture it is not unreasonable to expect that illicit stills will greatly multiply in that region so peculiarly adapted to such unlawful enterprise.

If it was dangerous in the old days to track the moonshiner to his still, yet greater risk is likely to be encountered under a regime where profits in the traffic promise to be so much greater. Under such circumstances the position of "revenoosers" is not likely to be sought by those who prefer a quiet and uneventful life. Yet the government cannot permit violation of the law without making every effort to suppress the manufacture.

It is not to be expected that moonshining will be confined to the southern mountains. It is already being widely experimented in, but in the more thickly populated regions detection will be easier. The mountaineers have had the experience of two or three generations in the business and naturally are much better schooled in conducting it in a manner to elude officers as well as being protected by isolation and the clannishness of their neighbors.

THE MEN'S GLEE CLUB.

The organization of a men's glee club has aroused a great deal of interest in this community and it is predicted that within a few weeks it will be one of the strongest singing societies in the city.

Its purposes are to provide entertainment and instruction for those who belong as well as those who will have the opportunity to listen to its singing.

It gives men who have singing voices a chance to

THE COMMONPLACE.

The smile upon a friendly face
Tells nothing that is commonplace;
It's fresh as sunlight and the dew
And through the years is ever new.
Though other joys grow cold and stale,
The charms of friendship never fail.

Men weary of the world, they cry,
And I can only wonder why,
For every rising of the sun
Brings splendid things to look upon,
And every day we wake to view
The least of us is born anew.

Who worries of the friendly hand
That's waved to him across the land?
Who, when he opens wide his door,
Does not rejoice to hear once more
His neighbor's salutation gay
At the commencement of the day?

Who is not glad that he can see
Day after day the self-same tree?
Who cannot turn his eyes on trees
And find new splendors in the sky,
And who would stamp as commonplace
The beauty of a loved one's face?

In all men are, in all the world,
There is a thrill that's ever new.
Despite the care and pain of strife
There's no monotony to life.
Though nothing now exists, we're told,
The truth is there is nothing old.

meet once a week to sing. Already about 30 members have been enrolled. It is hoped that this number will be increased at the meeting Tuesday night. An invitation is extended to all men who have singing voices.

As soon as the club is ready with a program it will make its bow to local people to show that it is really worthy of support. It will need financial aid to engage a director, a pianist, buy music and bear other expenses. When it has demonstrated its worth to the community it will solicit associate memberships, but not before it has given a try-out.

Janesville is going to need just such organizations as this and the efforts to put the glee club upon a permanent foundation will no doubt meet with encouragement from those who love music.

Let us put the Red Cross Roll Call over with a snap. No one will admit that the Red Cross is not America's greatest humanitarian organization and that it is the duty of every citizen of this nation to become a member. The women of Janesville and Rock county are out on the job today. They should be able to finish their task by the middle of the week. When they come to you, hand them your dollar and pin the 1920 button on your coat lapel. It will remind some other fellow that he has not paid his yearly membership dues.

Value of War Bonds

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director

Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—Every day some scores of people from Janesville or Tacoma, from Providence or Pueblo, or from some other point on the big map of the most prosperous nation on earth, write letters to the treasury department at Washington and ask advice as to safe investments for the money that are accumulating in their pockets.

That department does not want to put itself in the position of unduly pushing its own wares, but it has a lot of confidence in the government securities that are kicking about, and really feels that an opportunity to profit on an investment in those securities is about as good a thing as one should want. If properly pushed treasury officials will reveal a situation which makes it look as though an investor might go far and fare worse than by purchasing government bonds.

In all there are 16 varieties of war bonds on the market. The government has none of them for sale. They are already sold. They are now owned by the people. The government makes no profit by their sale or fall. It has got to put interest on them at par and has got to raise them at maturity. It is the same to the government if they sell at 90 or 120.

First Draw Lowest Interest. The first liberty bonds issued grew the lowest rate of interest. They were three and a half percent. Strange to say, of all the issues this is the one that is today bringing the highest price. These three and a half percent bonds are now selling above par. The reason for this is that they are exempt from income tax. Rich folks whose surplus income goes largely into the coffers of Uncle Sam buy these bonds and are allowed to keep the whole three and a half percent. They are a good buy for the rich folks, but they would be the worst buy in the lot for a poor man who is not paying a high rate of income tax.

It is peculiar that the fourth liberty loan is selling at a little below par. It is the cheapest of the government securities on the market. It sells around 94. It is not exempt from income tax and is not so good for the rich man. It is fine, however, for the poor man. It is worth more than 94. The reason for this is so much of it. It was the big issue. There is six billion dollars worth of it. There is always a certain amount of the law of supply and demand works and the price is run down. The fourth liberty loan four and a quarter, at the present price, pays 4.75 percent. It is a good buy.

Third Bonds Favorite. The bankers' favorite of the Liberty bonds is the third four and a quarter. These bonds mature in 10 years. They are selling a little below par. Their interest is good and the early maturity insures a profit on the buy. At the present market price they figure to yield 4.87 on the money you put in them.

Then there are the second four and a quarter. They are the buy of them all that just now yields the highest return on the investment. The highest return on the investment is 4.87. The government has the privilege of retiring them in 1927 and will probably do so. This means that there will be a profit of six cents on each dollar. This added to the interest that will be collected in the meantime means that these government bonds are today a 5.18 percent investment, which is mighty good for the bonds of the government which is the most financially sound of any in the world.

These figures are based on the known fact of the rate of interest paid on these bonds and the known figures at which they will be retired. There is nothing speculative in government bonds bought at these figures. One knows exactly what his returns will be.

But there is a speculative element in the purchase of government bonds. Before the war, for instance, this government was able to sell its bonds at par when they bore interest at 3 percent. When a nation is at war, no matter how strong it may be, its securities will not sell as readily as in times of peace. It must offer higher rates of interest. The United States offered those rates of interest. It sold most of its bonds around four and a half. It will compare to pay par but four and a half until their maturity which will be 10 and 20 years.

Handsome Interest Promised. If it is granted that, after we have returned to normal conditions, the rate of interest the government will have to pay will be as high as three and a half percent, there will still be a handsome interest premium on these long time loans. It can hardly fail to be true that the prices of these bonds will rise in the open market. One of these liberty loan bonds can sell at 120 and yet yield a three percent return on the investment. Those who in finance believe that 120 will be about the normal

THE AUTUMN LIMBS.
(It is not often that we resort to verse for a story. In fact we have never written any before. We have never believed in it, but the autumn is upon us with its falling leaves and limbs that are slowly growing to a state of nakedness, and autumn brings unusual thoughts, so here goes some verse (more or less) as it were.)
I walked alone the avenue,
The autumn avenue.
Gosh!
The tang of autumn
Was in the air
And noticed the limbs.
The limbs almost bare
That lined the avenue,
Long limbs,
Ghastly limbs,
Straight limbs,
Knotted limbs,
Some thin, some thick.
Limbs that had seen
Their summer foliage,
And I thought,
That is the hardest thing I do—
To think of autumn.

And I thought and thought—
And thought,
How much I admired
For limbs that stand
When they were covered.
For then I could not see them.
And I thought
Gosh!
I ain't never saw
So many limbs before
In all my life and
I worry as to how
Those limbs will shiver and creak
When the wintry zephyrs blow
And the snow is deep.
Of course it is the style
In autumn.
Yea, Bo!
I'll say it is.
So I worry no more.
Let nature care for her own.
No, Ethevryn; no, Eloise,
I am not speaking
Of the trees.

HIGH IN HIS CLASS.
Eugene McGunn is making good
At college work this year.
For limbs that stand
Right up in front quite clear.
And yet it seems a mystery
That Eugene should be so high;
His ever studies, yet you see
Jim always getting by!
Gene cuts his classes right and left.
They'd fire him, it would seem;
But—'s a tackle, and his left
Will for the football team!

ASK US

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederic J.
Haskin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information, may write a letter to the Janesville Daily Gazette, Information Bureau, Washington D. C., and enclose a stamp. The letter will be answered by the bureau.

Q. How many are there in the country with an annual income of more than million dollars? E. J. K.
A. The bureau of internal revenue says that its records for the 1918 income tax returns show that 141 individuals reported incomes of over a million dollars.

Q. How many post and mail service routes have been established in the United States? V. V.
A. So far only two postal routes have been established. One is from Washington to New York, and the other is from New York to Chicago via Cleveland.

Q. Which is the better investment, a $50 victory bond or $50 worth of war savings stamps?
G. A. C.

A. The war savings committee says that $50 invested in war savings stamps and a $50 liberty bond will produce the same amount of interest, and one is considered as good as the other.

Q. How is the successor of the Pope of Rome chosen? M. R.
A. He is elected from among the cardinals by the highest dignities in the church next to the Pope. After the death of the pontiff the cardinals are summoned to Rome and there secluded from the world while the election of one of their number to the highest office of the church takes place.

Q. What is meant by the term
"Continental America"? H. P. H.
A. By Continental America is meant that part of the United States which is situated on the mainland of North America. This would include the Hawaiian Islands, nor the Philippines, nor Porto Rico.

Q. While the president was in Europe, he received among other honors, the "Freedom of London."
What is the significance of this honor? E. A.

A. The custom of conferring the freedom of the city upon a person is freed upon the register of the municipal officers. In medieval times the principle of the freedom of the domicile was by no means universally recognized. It was necessary in some cases to serve seven years apprenticeship to one of the recognized guilds before becoming a citizen of the town. In such days the conferring of the freedom of the city upon a man won of great practical value.
It has now become merely an expression of honor.

Q. What is the cheapest way to go to Savannah, Ga., from New York? C. A.

A. You can travel cheapest by boat. There are two steamship lines between these points. The fare to Savannah is about $25. First class, which includes stateroom, meals, et cetera.

Q. Who does the printing for the marine corps? E. M.
A. The marines have small plants of their own at which all their printing is done by enlisted men.
Q. How many miles of telegraph wire are there in this country?
R. A. G.

A. There are 2,214,000 miles of telegraph wire in the United States, and 20,248,327 miles of telephone wire.

CLEVELAND HOLDS HAMMOND TO TIE

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Playing a brand of football that had the crowd on its toes every minute of the game, Hammond and Cleveland, leading professional eleven of the east and west, battled to a scoreless tie at the Cub ball park yesterday afternoon. Over 6,000 people witnessed the clash of these all-star aggregations.

Only once during the entire contest did either team have a real opportunity to score, and then a fumble ruined that chance. Hammond worked the ball down to the 5-yard line on a series of line plunges and end runs and with one yard to make on the fourth down the ball eluded the grasp of the Hammond players and bounded over the goal line where a Cleveland man fell on it for a touchback.

Aside from this one chance the playing was practically all confined to the territory between the 35-yard lines. Cleveland worked the ball down close enough to try two place kicks, but both went wide of their mark, chiefly because the rushing tactics of the Hammond line caused the kicker to hurry his effort.

The work of the Hammond line was a revelation to the crowd. With the exception of Solon, former Minnesota All-American fullback, the visitors were unable to pierce the Hammond wall. In fact, time after time their line plunges resulted in losses of one or two yards. Des Jardine, Haddock, Keefe and the other linemen were in on every play, often tackling the runner from behind.

DEFEAT OF BADGERS AND CHICAGO PUTS OHIO STATE ON TOP

Team	Points	Per.
Ohio State	1,000	1.000
Illinois	750	.875
Chicago	687	.812
Wisconsin	667	.790
Minnesota	500	.625
Michigan	500	.625
Iowa	500	.625
Indiana	500	.625
Purdue	500	.625
Northwestern	500	.625

As a result of the startling upset Saturday in the race for the western conference football championship, Ohio State today is the only undefeated eleven remaining in the struggle. But if the upset are to continue, Purdue may defeat Ohio State next Saturday and put the Buckeyes in a complicated tie for the "Big Ten" honor. This is a possibility, but the strong Ohio eleven appears to have the championship already bagged.

Before Saturday's games, few showed followers of football gave Illinois a chance to down Chicago and only a scattering believed that Minnesota would triumph over Wisconsin. But the Illinois and Gophers displayed a brilliant brand of football that was totally unexpected. Illinois' 13 to 0 victory over Chicago is attributed to a close and open attack. It used this style of play a year ago when Illinois defeated Iowa 19 to 0 in one of the biggest surprises of the season.

Gophers Show Class.

Minnesota showed complete reversal of form in winning from Wisconsin, 19 to 7. The Gophers had shown anything but a brand of football which warranted a victory over Wisconsin, having been held to a tie by Nebraska and being defeated by Iowa.

But the Minnesota eleven is playing in characteristic form. In past seasons the team lost one game and then rushed through its schedule without another defeat. The Minnesota eleven, apparently, have struck their gait and from now on undoubtedly will be a hard aggregation to beat. It is pointed out that the Gophers are slow to rotate into form and have seldom shown their true strength until the November games.

Purple Lion Out.

Northwestern fumbled a wonderful opportunity to triumph over Michigan and lost 16 to 13 after outplaying the Wolverines for the first three periods. With defeat facing them, the Wolverines came from behind and placed Northwestern on the defensive and put over two touchdowns in the last nine minutes of play.

Notre Dame won a well earned victory over Indiana, 16 to 3, in a game which gives the South Bend eleven a strong hold on the Indiana championship.

Purdue won from the Michigan Aggies, 13 to 7, after an interesting struggle played on a muddy field. Ames added to the surprises of Saturday by defeating Nebraska, while Iowa had no trouble in breezing through the game with South Dakota.

BRINGING UP FATHER

AUTO RACER, DRIVER FOR PERSHING, SHOT

[By Associated Press.]

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 2.—Sheriff's officers at Las Cruces, New Mexico, were investigating today the fatal shooting of John T. Hutchings, automobile racer, near Lordsburg, N. M., 16 miles west of here, yesterday by a party of four men and four women, one of them a major in the United States army. The eight are being held at Las Cruces on charges of murder. Major F. M. Scanland, one of the eight, declared the shooting was accidental. He said they were shooting at a target when Hutchings came along in his car in the El Paso-Phoenix road race.

After Hutchings was shot, Oliver Lee, his mechanic, drove the car with the wounded driver into Las Cruces and returned to the scene of the shooting with county officers who made arrests. Hutchings was driver for General Pershing during the American punitive expedition into Mexico and has been a contestant in most of the automobile races of the southwest. His home was in Alamogordo, N. Mex.

Those under arrest are Major Scanland, Harry C. Overstreet, and "Chalk" Altman of El Paso, and Fred Jackson, Alvin, Texas. The women are Billie Bennett, Mrs. Overstreet, Mrs. E. J. McPherson, El Paso.

ST. JOHN'S IS AFTER NATIONAL HONORS

Deland, Fla., Nov. 2.—Saturday's game with the soldier eleven of Fort Sheridan found the St. John's Military Academy team feeling not one bit the worse for the battle today. The cadets spent the Sabbath in celebrating their victory over the "soldier" invaders, and now look forward to their next battle, Nov. 15, when Shattuck comes to Deland.

Shattuck has a strong team this year, and has been setting a great record in Minnesota. A victory for St. John's over the Gopher state rivals will put them in running for a game with the military school winning the eastern honors this year. This game would be for the national title "Buck" Shattuck is now the battle cry of Coach Fletcher.

BROOKLYN

[By Gazette Correspondent.]

Brooklyn, Nov. 1.—Thursday evening the Epworth League of the M. E. church gave a "Hallowe'en" social. Games were played and refreshments served. The visit to the "chamber of horrors" and the "wheel of fortune" were especially interesting. Many also visited the "witch's cave" where their future lives were portrayed.

Friday evening the basketball team of the Brooklyn high school and the town team held a basket social and dance in the opera house. Those present report an enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Waite were Madison visitors Saturday.

A number from here attended the game in Madison Saturday.

Miss Jessie Waite was an Oregon visitor Saturday.

A portion of the Thomas Alsop farm has been sold to John Linney. Mr. Linney will put up new buildings in the spring.

Frank Bechen and family have moved to Crystal Lake, where Mr. Becher will be employed in a creamery.

JANESVILLE HIGHS LOSE TO JEFFERSON BY SCORE OF 38 TO 0

Jefferson high school had too many trick plays and too much weight for Janesville and the latter lost Saturday's contest by a score of 38 to 0. The game was played at Jefferson. The local boys were out-weighted from 16 to 15 pounds each. Even though defeated the Janesville players put over some snappy formations and at all times were battling for ground. They contested for ground during the first half of the game in such a persistent manner that they held even honors with Jefferson. The ball remained near the center of the field for most of the first two periods. The local team was unable to get away from several fumbles and the opponents were quick to profit by the mistakes. Jefferson had a smooth working forward pass which netted many long advances.

The local team is not discouraged by the defeat of Saturday as Jefferson is rated as one of the best high school aggregations in this part of the state and they have scored 130 points in five straight games. They meet the fast Ft. Atkinson bunch next Saturday and go up against the heavy Monroe outfit the following week.

Full, Janesville's quarter, was forced to retire because of injuries and Powers, captain, went to his position. Powers played his usual hard and head game and almost most of the gains made by Janesville. Hager and Dobson also showed to good advantage.

"Knotty problem? Let me help"

"HELP" is right! A smooth, mellow smoke is just the thing, when you're up against a tough one. And Chesterfield is that smoke.

An expert and exclusive blend is responsible—finest, silkier Turkish tobaccos from Xanthi, Cavalla, Smyrna and Samsoun, and the best varieties of Domestic leaf—put together by the manufacturer's private formula that brings out every last bit of flavor. No other process, no other blend, can successfully imitate Chesterfield's smoothness and full-bodied flavor.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 20 years old, considered very good looking and am very kind and loving to my friends. There is only one, however, whose attentions I desire. I have known him all my life and he has been very kind to me, but he does not seem to care for me. How can I win his affection, for without it I am never happy?

DOUGLAS ALICE

It is ordained by the nature of things that the nature of the heart is to love. When a girl breaks this rule she subjects herself to unfavorable comment and usually, compromises herself in the eyes of the young man she particularly desires.

You can be happy with what comes to you naturally. It is foolish to idealize and then think that some living person embodies your ideals. You would be disappointed if you could have the young man as your sweetheart.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last summer I went visiting and while I was away I met a young man whom I liked very much. After I came home he wrote to me four different times. I answered all his letters, but the last time I wrote I received no answer. Shall I write again or forget him? He told my friend that he cared very much for me. Do you think he does?

He gave me his ring to wear and also several pictures of himself. Shall I return them? TROUBLED.

It seems to be "out of sight, out of mind" with the young man. Do not write again unless he answers your last letter.

Since he shows by his neglect that he is not deeply attached to you, it would be unwise to put too much faith in what your friend says. He probably spoke well of you and your friend placed too much importance on his words.

Keep the ring and pictures a few years longer and if you do not hear from him, return them.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Two years ago I wrote you for advice. At that time I was and am yet in love with a married woman. You advised me to go away. I did and just returned to find I could not forget her, but it seems impossible, although she does not encourage me in the least.

I have met her several times since I came home and she treats me as she always did. Lately, however, she seems to feel very sorry for me and tells me some day things will be different.

She works and provides for herself and three children. Her husband does not seem to care for her and abuses her and the children. She says she would leave him only that she is afraid people would talk about her.

I went back into the army for four years and contributed to her support until I return to marry her, do you think it would be a great wrong?

I think the woman should get a divorce since her husband curses and abuses her and the children and makes home an unfit place for them to live in. It is very foolish of her to worry about what people say. As long as she knows she is doing the right thing, she should not care what others think. She should be entirely and her confidence in herself will keep people from talking. Gossip is cruel, but in this case would be directed against the man and not the woman.

Give up the idea of contributing to her support while you are away. She should not accept money from you unless she is your wife.

I believe you should go away again and stay until she sends for you with the news that she is free.

Life seems bright today. After all, Jim is a darling. If he is not always ready to see things my way, neither is he always unwilling to. And, come to think of it, I am rather a proposition! I mean, to a man of Jim's type.

We had a good, comfortable talk last night about my new work—that is, if it pans out. It isn't an easy thing for Jim, but he is in a small city by an adoring, conventional, egotistical mother, to conceive of a woman desiring anything more than being his wife.

Jim's idea of a wife is a woman who, chosen by a man to share his home and bear his children, does so without opposition or ado, acting incidentally as an advertisement of her husband's prosperity or a concealment for his mistakes.

It is no wonder that it takes time, tears and trouble for him to realize that there are other, and more complex, ideas of wifehood which he must reckon with.

I met Jim, however, that he tries to be openminded and just. It isn't his fault if a wall of tradition, prejudice and mid-Victorian ideas stands between him and his brain. I'll find a way in if I have to blast!

Our talk ended with Jim taking my face between his hands, wiggling my head and saying, "Well, puss, I suppose I'll have to give you your love." (Imagine him calling my ambitions for economic independence a "puss"!) "Only don't hurt yourself with it. Don't eat the paint off and make yourself sick. I know it looks pretty colored to you now. And don't get out into the sharp edges—the machinery of the business world is full of hidden snags. I wish you could see that. You must help me," Jim added.

Which shows that for all his apparent coming around he doesn't understand the thing in the least as I see it. He still regards it as a mere effort on my part to help over a hard place. He cannot yet see the fundamental truth that no one man or woman, maid or wife, has a right to enjoy without the obligation of earning. And that congenial work is the greatest happiness in life.

However, my spirits are soaring today. That Jim even partly sees, and partly agrees, lightens my heart. The sun shines into my window. There is work to do, opportunity everywhere. All sorts of wild hopes sing in my soul. Perhaps I can write. Perhaps some day Jim will be as proud of my work as of my looks, of what's inside my head as of what's outside of it, of my ability to think with him.

Ah, here is Athena. Hasten, come to take me to see the "Messenger" editor.

REST FOR A TIRED METABOLISM

Metabolism is not a new religion or a freak system of healing. It is a medical term meaning life. And I'll bet you can't tell me in a simple sentence what life is. I don't know either, except that it is life that keeps us warm and keeps us going. We inhale fresh air and beat soup, and if we are still alive the oxygen from the air and the nitrogen, carbon, hydrogen and other stuff in the bean soup are worked up together and made into first class bone, muscle, hair, teeth, skin or something; or, if the demand for energy is urgent, the beans are immediately oxidized (burned) to release the energy necessary to give some kindling or change a tire. That is metabolism, and it is amazing how the process goes on from month to month and from year to year without any attention. Not just with beans, but with pancakes and spareribs and mince pies and fried cornmeal mush and everything.

Some animals lack instinct. They don't know when they have had enough to eat. You won't find wild animals actually starving to death. They grow obese and keep right on stuffing regardless; or they develop dropsy; or the heart begins to wear out and the constant overloading overtaxes puts upon the circulation—feeding slacker tissue, or the kidneys break down from the strain of eliminating such an unending excess of by-product or waste material; or perhaps some of these evil effects manifest themselves for considerably longer periods of time. "Dyspepsia" or an obstinate type of the poor animal may like to call his health "agent"—you know some animals actually wear out from a kind of style, exclusive malady which implies that grandpa used to hit up the hard cider something scandalous.

If metabolism is tired give it a rest. You will be surprised at the improvement you will feel after a few days of metabolic rest. Of course it is a terrible thing to feel fat to learn that in order to rest the metabolism it is necessary also to rest the receptaculum chylae. A food fat assurance that the receptaculum being a receptacle, should be kept constantly loaded and slopping over some. He thinks the receptaculum chylae is indigestible.

With a view to making the rest as interesting as possible we call it more attractive name—the Karell regimen. It isn't new. Karell lived and flourished in Russia many years ago. But it is a great medicine for a tired metabolism. Karell a day or two each week, with accent on the "t" and see for yourself. In any event it is a true Hippocratic remedy—if it does no good it can do no harm. If you have forgotten the technique of the Karell regimen, send a stamped addressed envelope to the conductor of this train of thought, or contain yourself and your overload of nutrient for a day or two and he will give the technique in print.

EVERYDAY HELPS

By GRANDMOTHER WELLS

With milk so high, it is necessary to use every drop to the best advantage, and if by any chance it sours, it must be used just the same. Sour milk has really all the properties of sweet milk. It has only to be combined with baking soda, in the proper proportions, to be used in practically the same ways as sweet milk. One pint of sour milk requires one level teaspoonful of soda. In a recipe which calls for sweet milk, sour milk may be substituted by taking, instead of the baking powder mentioned in the recipe, one-half that amount of soda. Sour milk and cream has a double advantage: it can take the place of both sweet milk and butter. In the following recipes sour milk is utilized in several staple dishes.

Muffins—To one egg, add half a tablespoonful of sugar, and a pinch of salt. Dissolve one-half teaspoonful of soda in one-half cup of warm water and add to one cup of thick sour milk. Pour milk into the egg, and stir in one and one-half cups of flour and one teaspoonful of blue powder. Beat lightly and pour into muffin pans. Bake in a quick oven.

Drop Cakes—Separate two eggs, add gradually to the yolks one cup of sugar, beating meanwhile; dissolve one-half teaspoonful of soda in one cup of sour milk, add one tablespoon of butter, and stir mixture into the egg and sugar. Beat in two and one-half cups of flour (sifted), the beaten whites. Bake in gem pans or drop by spoonfuls in a shallow greased pan.

Salted Dressing—To the yolk of one egg add one-half tablespoonful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of mustard, a pinch of salt, and one-half cup of sour milk. Cook until it boils, adding as it cooks, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Stir all the time. When it has boiled about five minutes, it is done. Add a tablespoonful of butter, beat it into the mixture, and set aside to cool.

Salad Dressing—Beat one egg, add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one cup of sour milk in which half a teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved, and one cup of flour, sifted with half a teaspoonful of blue powder.
